Empathy
&
Respect

Sympathy vs. Empathy

Sympathy is feeling without really understanding the meaning behind the behavior, whereas empathy is:

- accepting and understanding what the other is experiencing.
- thinking and feeling as if you are the one going through the experiences – ‘to actually be in their shoes’.
- conveying ‘I understand how you feel’ in verbal and non-verbal ways.

Before posting anything online, ask yourself the following:

- Will this information hurt someone?
- Would I say these things while communicating face to face?
- Am I revealing too much about myself or others?
- Who all can access this information?
- What kind of impression am I leaving on others?

A large, vibrant red speech bubble is the central focus, held up by several hands from different people. The hands are positioned around the edges of the bubble, suggesting a collective effort or shared responsibility. The background is a plain, light gray, which makes the red bubble stand out prominently. The text inside the bubble is written in a clean, white, sans-serif font, centered and easy to read.

Report as harassment or bullying?

We remove:

- Posts that contain credible threats
- Content that targets people to degrade or shame them
- Personal information shared to blackmail or harass
- Posts or threats to post nude photos of you

We have a zero tolerance policy around threats to post intimate images of others.

If you report someone's post, Instagram doesn't tell them who reported it.

Next

If someone is in immediate danger, call local emergency services. Don't wait.

Collecting data needed for investigation

- Save the URL of the profile in question/username or any other identifying parameter that can pinpoint the offender's profile.

A screenshot of a web browser displaying the Facebook profile page for the Cyber Peace Foundation. The browser's address bar is highlighted with a green rectangular box and contains the URL <https://www.facebook.com/cyberpeacefoundation/>. A large blue arrow points downwards from the top center of the image towards the address bar. The Facebook profile page shows the organization's logo, name, and a large group photo of people in front of a building. The page also displays navigation options like 'Home', 'About', 'Photos', 'Videos', 'Events', and 'Posts', along with a 'Sign Up' button and a rating of 4.9 out of 5 based on 5 people.

- Try to save information like IP address, model of phone, IMEI number and other details of your devices.
